euroAtlantic Airways partners with Azul Linhas Aéreas Brasileiras to offer routes between São Paulo and Lisbon

euroAtlantic Airways (EAA), part of the Njord Partners portfolio and a leading Portuguese company in aircraft wet-leasing and charter services, is pleased to announce a new agreement with Azul Linhas Aéreas Brasileiras in response to the significant increase in demand for flights between Brazil and Portugal. This strategic partnership will provide additional direct flights connecting São Paulo (Viracopos Airport) to Lisbon (Humberto Delgado Airport), with operations having commenced on 19 December 2024.

With over 30 years of experience and a proud history of 25 years' operating flights in Brazil, EAA will provide several long-haul aircraft to support this important route. The first aircraft is already in service, with potential for additional aircraft to be added in 2025.

Stewart Higginson, CEO and President of euroAtlantic Airways, commented:

"We are very pleased to establish this strategic partnership with Azul Linhas Aéreas Brasileiras, strengthening the ties between Brazil and Portugal. With more than three decades of operational excellence, we are excited to offer the exceptional safety, comfort, and quality of service that Azul passengers expect."

Abhi Shah, President of Azul Linhas Aéreas Brasileiras, added:

"Based in Europe, euroAtlantic Airways has commercial relationships with major airlines worldwide and extensive experience in passenger transport. Moreover, it is recognized for its quality service delivery and reliability in the sector."
